8. Mayor Love conducted the power point presentations from the OPP/MPAC meeting held on May 30, 2016 on OPP Municipal Policing Billing Model. Mayor Higgins provided input during the presentations.
 - Purpose of the meeting was to review the RMFEO analysis of costing based on number of residences and ROMA's concern related to trailers.
 - RMFEO member municipalities found a discrepancy between the numbers provided to the OPP and the numbers identified in a municipality.
 - MPAC provided details on how the numbers are calculated. In summary the number of properties provided to the OPP is the sum of total units on a property and includes residential, commercial and industrial. "Units" is defined as a self contained residential units intended for seasonal or year round use. This means there can be more than one unit on a property such as a granny suite, camping trailer, house trailer or cabins besides the main residence. Apartment building, condominiums and townhouses have "units" within the main building. A business with a residence is identified as both a business plus a residential unit. As well a residence plus a cell tower is classed as 1 residence plus 1 industrial. Cell towers, solar farms, pipelines, wind turbines and bill boards fall into the industrial category and are provided to the OPP as properties.
 - OPP provided an explanation of their billings. In summary the OPP invoice municipalities as per the current government regulations and use the data provided by MPAC. OPP cost recovery is allocated by base service plus calls for service. Base services are allocated equally among municipalities based on properties as provided by MPAC. Calls for service are billed to the municipality that had the call for service. OPP provides the billing information to the Minister of Community Safety and Correctional Services for the billing model approval. Decision to include or exclude property types from the billing model are the authority of the Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services and the OPP.

- Key issue is the lack of common information being provided amongst the three groups. The information provided to the OPP is not the same information utilized by MPAC and Municipalities for taxation purposes. As described above the use of units is being used by the OPP to justify their billing model and cost recovery. Using this approach means municipalities do not have a clear understanding of how they are being billed and explains the discrepancy in the numbers of properties being counted by municipalities and those counted by the OPP.
- If we reclassify how properties are counted the costs still stay the same so we still get billed the same. The issue for municipalities is that we cannot recover costs on the use of “units” as per the Municipal Act so we cannot tax properly for the current OPP billing cost recovery model.
- An example if Mr. and Mrs. X had a parent who became ill and had to move into the basement, this is classed as two units and are billed by the OPP as two properties. If Mr. X had a commercial billboard on his land he now has two residential properties and one commercial. If he also has wind turbines on the roll number property he now has one industrial, which now totals four properties billed by the OPP and municipalities assess and tax this as one property.
- One core example is units is used for multi residential properties and could include condos and apartment buildings. Apparently the same model cannot be used by the OPP for shopping malls and they classify this as one property that could have any number of stores within that complex.
- All parties agreed to work on these issues to try and reach consensus on a billing model that works for all.
